Mould discovered at Yellowhead Ag Society facility

Lots of fun at Road Hockey Rumble...

by Niki Luymes
Yellowhead Agricultural Society representative and bookkeeper Christine Davis came before Town Council on September 13, during the Committee of the Whole meeting, to ask for financial support for planned improvements to the Yellowhead Agricultural Society's community facility. She was accompanied by Christine Alward, president of the society. RH Services Inc. was retained by Yellowhead Agricultural Society recently to conduct a Mould Assessment and Testing of the Edson Riding Arena located in Edson. The purpose of the assessment was to determine the extent of mould within the building and confirm airborne mould levels and provide recommended actions for remediation.

The inspector found that visible mould is evident and confirmed through bulk sampling and airborne testing. Elevated airborne mould concentrations exceeded the Alberta Health Services Guidelines, therefore actions are required.

The root causes of the Mould, the inspector's report concluded, are likely a combination of condensation, materials in direct contact with the soil, past roof leaks, and poor localized site grading/drainage.

RH Services Inc. recommends that site access should be prohibited to persons that are immune compromised, allergic to mould, have other respiratory issues such as asthma, or infants and elderly. If this is too difficult to assess and control, they recommend closing the site until remediation can be completed.

Signage posted at the site indicating the presence of Mould is also suggested. The company recommends that remediation should be completed as soon as practical (spring/summer). The remediation of mouldy materials should also be done following Moderate to High Risk procedures as described in the Alberta Government Best Practices – Mould at the Worksite document.

The needed and planned repairs are as follows: Mitigate condensation and hazardous mould issues. Remove affected items and replace with new, treated and appropriate material. Replace ceiling and insulation. Improved cleanliness and air quality by removing side wall lumber panels and replacing with metal cladding, while also replacing dirt floor with new and clean dirt material. Installing an air exchanger to improve circulation and reduce condensation. Finally, install new seating areas for safety and functionality.

After obtaining numerous quotes for the project, the YAS Board has decided to use Richard's Carpentry at their meeting on August 17, 2022.

The Yellowhead Agricultural Society is currently securing funding of $456,226.75 from ATB Financial for the project. The lender requires a limited guarantee for the loan, preferably from a municipality. The formally requested support is as follows: Shared Limited Guarantee for the ATB loan and $100,000 commitment towards the project expenses.

During the presentation to council, Davis said that the arena is already pre-booked for 30% of the coming year. Since the October to May season is their busiest season, they would need the repairs completed fairly soon. Alward added that lots of local business is staged out of the facility, adding, "This is all we have, if we do not repair this arena we have nothing."

Councillor Krystal Baier asked if they have a breakdown of who uses the facility. Davis replied that about 65% Yellowhead County residents and 35% from the town. Councillor Baier also asked if they had been to the County with their request. "We will be. We have requested a date to meet with them again and they haven't provided one to us yet, but we are hoping to meet with them soon," responded Davis.

"We will be unable to give you a decision tonight," said Mayor Kevin Zahara. "But I understand you are on a strict timetable. Would you be able to continue without a guarantee from a municipality?" Davis replied, "The funding from the bank is not dependant on your funding to us. However the guarantee is very important."

Council will deliberate further on the matter at a future meeting.

Lots of fun at Road Hockey Rumble

by Niki Luymes

There was lots of fun to be had at this year's Road Hockey Rumble. On September 10, kids of all ages gathered in the Edson Leisure Centre parking lot to compete in the event.

This year's Rumble began at 9am with the last games starting at 3:15pm. While the day started out on the chiller side, it slowly warmed up to a perfect sunny day.

Not only did the event feature many exciting games of road hockey, but also offered a free barbecue for participants and the Big Wayne's Mini Treats stand for treats and snacks.

This year's numbers were up from last year with 25 teams ranging from age 7 up to 15, making for over 160 kids participating in the event. This was also the first year that the event was open for teams from Edson, Hinton, and Whitecourt.

The Edson Eagles hockey team were there helping out throughout the day. They assisted by filling the empty slots against the U7 and U15 age brackets. They also served the barbecue and helped with general set up. The event was also made possible by many local sponsors who donated prizes and equipment to the event.

All participating kids and teens received a free goodie bag to celebrate the day. There were prize ribbons for the youngest group, medals for the 9-13 kids, and an epic treat basket for the 15 year old winners.

"It's just basically a great day for the kids to come out and play some hockey with their friends and have a good time," said Nikki Kachmarchyk, one of the event organizers.

It is time to revisit resource corridors

The world has changed dramatically. Even the Liberals are saying so. Resource corridors could be the catalyst to getting something done.

by David Yager

One of the best ideas that has gone nowhere is the creation of resource corridors for long-distance transportation infrastructure using routes where land-use and development issues are resolved in advance.

Historically, the path of transportation infrastructures like railroads, highways, power lines and pipelines has been "map and ruler," a straight line at the lowest cost. Geography, like lakes and mountains, was the main reason for route changes.

Fortunately, most of Canada's long-distance infrastructure was built well before the population grew significantly. The national railroads are a perfect example.

Many communities only exist because the railroad came first, sparing seeking permission to knock down houses and buildings to run a rail line through town.

Since then, building anything extending beyond the property line of your backyard has become increasingly difficult, if not impossible, be it pipelines, power lines, or even roads.

New acronyms emerged. NIMBY, or Not In My Backyard. More obstacles led to BANANA, Build Absolutely Nothing Anywhere Near Anybody.

In Canada, so many projects have been studied, delayed, cancelled or prohibited that we have rightfully earned an international reputation as the country that can't build anything.

This is counterintuitive because long-distance infrastructure is the only reason our nation exists in its current form and is wealthy enough to obstruct continued development.

A determined creator of infrastructure conflicts has been Canada's landlocked oil and gas industry, with enormous resources and no access to tidewater.

New pipelines to the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans and the Gulf of Mexico have been proposed then opposed by environmentalists, landowners, municipalities, provinces, states and countries.

Billions of dollars have been vaporized on uncompleted projects.

The Trudeau government alone is not to blame: BC, Ontario, Quebec, Montreal, Vancouver, Montana, Minnesota, Nebraska, and the U.S. government are also opponents.

An innovative solution to resolve the pipeline wars was the creation of resource corridors, pre-arranged right-of-ways over long distances that would be wide enough to accommodate power lines, pipelines, railways and even roads.

Canada has enough empty or underpopulated space that it could avoid the higher concentrations of people through planning, ingenuity and determination. Resource corridors are an obvious way to avoid most of the conflicts.

Soldiering on in its determination to maintain Canada's standard of living despite itself is the C2C2C Unity

Corridor project, which describes itself as a "... neutral national entity championing the development of a resilient network of corridors that can link Canada's economic opportunities, help create more resilient supply chains and support access to global markets."

Founded in 2018, C2C2C's idea is to change the channel on development applications from "why" to "what and where" by dealing with economic, land use, environmental and social impact issues in advance.

The first question is fundamental. Should the country's population and economy continue to grow? This answer is invariably yes, if for no other reason than even development opponents dare not say no.

Then the next step is what, how and where. It is at this step where everything bogs down.

The C2C2C approach is materially different from the current process, whereby a developer wants to undertake a multi-stakeholder project. The sponsor's interests, most often commercial, are clear. But the benefits to those affected are not.

What makes C2C2C relevant today is that world events have finally put the need for development before the project itself. The narrative on oil and gas development, in particular, has finally changed.

Due to a worldwide energy shortage and the invasion of Ukraine by Russia, Finance Minister Chrystia Freeland uttered words not spoken outside of western Canada in years: "(Canada has) a lot of energy. I think it is a political responsibility for us as a country to support our allies with energy security. This is a very tough moment for many European countries right now as they shift from their dependence on Russian oil and gas, and I think it's very important for Canada to step up and say, 'We're going to help you.'"

This is exactly C2C2C's purpose.

The organization has an experienced leadership team, including Jerry Demchuk, who has a long career in major oil and gas project development. He is supported by industry veteran Bob Steele, Indigenous leader and energy advocate Chris Sankey, and former B.C. attorney general Bud Smith.

Advisors include Preston Manning, a tireless supporter of responsible but continued resource development.

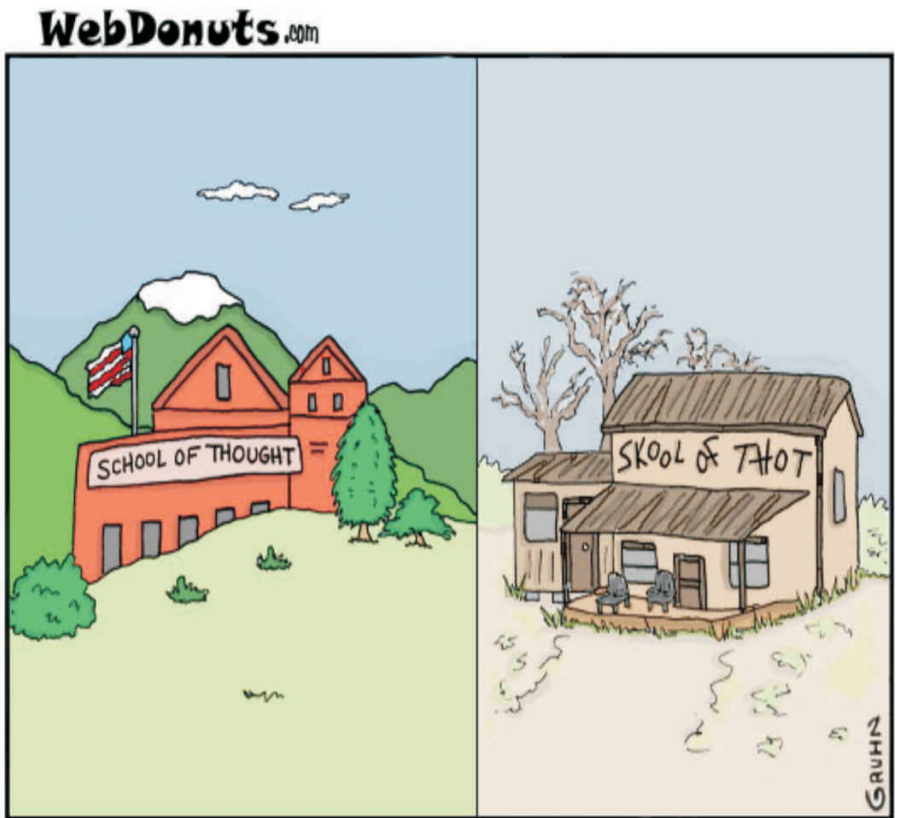

If and when Canada wakes up and starts doing things again, it will have to be done differently. Most elements of the consultation and engagement process are permanent.

But groups like C2C2C understand this and can provide a resource and catalyst for private sector development proponents who by now may be discouraged by a decade of "no" and have given up or moved their business elsewhere.

The world has changed dramatically. Even the Liberal government is saying different things. Resource corridors could be the catalyst to getting something done.

Because the world needs Canada's help. David Yager is an oilfield service executive, oil and gas writer, and energy policy analyst. © Troy Media

Older adults are a vital part of our communities. As parents and grandparents, mentors and friends, employees and employers, they make a difference in our lives. It is important that we continue to recognize, celebrate and support older adults.

There are so many great opportunities to stay connected with the older adults in your life, say thank you, make sure they are safe, and see if they need anything. To stay connected safely:

- Make a phone or video call, email or send letters to check in
  - Take an older adult(s) out for coffee, dinner or just have a face to face visit with them
- To support the emotional, mental and physical well-being of older adults and to spread good cheer throughout your community:
- Offer to assist with grocery and prescription purchases, or chores like cleaning or lawn mowing
  - Share stories with older adults and learn about their life experiences and history

Let's celebrate and support older adults!

Mobile mammography service to visit Evansburg

(AHS) Women ages 50-74 — the group most at risk of developing breast cancer — will have local access to mammography services when the Alberta Health Services Screen Test program arrives in the community. A mobile mammography trailer will be stationed in Evansburg for three days in late September.

Evansburg Baptist Church Parking Lot (4804 48 Avenue), September 28, 29 & October 1, 2022

Appointments are required. Residents can book an appointment or learn more about the program by calling 1-800-667-0604.

Screen Test is improving access to cancer screening for hundreds of women in Alberta communities where mammography is not readily available.

A mammogram is an X-ray of the breast and has proven to be the most effective way to detect breast cancer. Early detection allows for a greater number of options for treatment and a better chance of survival.

Due to COVID-19, Screen Test is taking a number of precautions to ensure the safety of our clients and staff. Details will be shared when you call to book your appointment.

Visit: <https://screeningforlife.ca/breast/screen-test-mobile-clinics/> for more information and a complete listing of Screen Test mobile sites.

Jason Daniel Levins

November 3, 1969 – September 5, 2022

It comes with deep sadness that we announce the sudden passing of our one and only Jason Daniel Levins also known as JJ. Jason grew up in Brandon, Manitoba, later making his way to Alberta. This is where he began his career in the hospitality industry. Known to serve others with his fun loving, generous personality, Jason had a heart for entertaining.

JJ was adored by everyone who had the pleasure of being in presence. His sense of humour was admired, he never forgot a name and never passed up an opportunity to be with family and friends. Jason enjoyed impersonations especially with Scottish accents. Being a movie buff, Jason could recite the entire movie Braveheart word for word. He was very honoured of his Scottish heritage.

Jason will be forever loved and remembered by his former partner Patricia, children Roman and Katlyn, grandchild Cassius, parents Carol Levins (Bernie) siblings Kimberly (Gino) Levins, Peter Levins, brother-in-law Troy (Donna) Hunt and special nieces, Sammi Jo, Raelene and Payton.

He is predeceased by his father Daniel Levins, brother, Christopher Levins, grandparents, George and Lucille Levins and Oren and Jane McLennan.

A Celebration of Life was held on Friday September 16, 2022 at 1:00 p.m. at the Whitecourt Legion.

If friends and family so desire, memorial contributions may be made directly to the Whitecourt Food Bank by visiting the Whitecourt Town Office. To leave a condolence or memory in Jason's name, please visit www.affinityfuneralservice.ca.

6th Annual Medicine Lodge Fall Round-Up

by Deanna Mitchener

It was another great Medicine Lodge Fall Round Up on September 10, making this the 6th annual event. Spectators had an afternoon of sunshine and excitement watching all the events unfold before their eyes.

"With all the thrills and spills of one of Alberta's toughest and roughest sports of today, some of the best cowboys, cowgirls, and stock in North America are here to entertain you," said Kelsey Anderson, President of the Medicine Lodge Fall Round-Up Society.

The society is a non-profit organization committed to bringing in a pure pro-rodeo exhibitions to our own backyard. Contestants battle it out for the top scores to secure their places at the Canadian Finals Rodeo.

The Rodeo stock was provided by Duffy Rodeo and the Rodeo announcer was Tyson Pietsch. Pickup men included Lee Trach and Jim Berry. Bull Fighters Houston Gleason and Cody Call were kept busy throughout the afternoon.

Judges never have an easy job either, so thanks to Corey Prutton and Ward Henry for keeping a keen eye on all the competitors.

The event included bareback, saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, tie-down roping, ladies barrel racing, team roping, bull riding and novice saddle bronc.

Some of the youngest cowpoke enthusiasts entered in the mutton bustin' event and got right up there for an unforgettable ride.

Miss Rodeo Canada 2022 Jayden Calvert made a special appearance. Jayden was crowned Miss Rodeo Canada 2022 at the Canadian Final Rodeo back in November of 2021. She has had a busy year so far.

Trick Rider-Bella Da Costa-impressed spectators with her trick riding abilities. She has been trick riding since the age of five.

During intermission, Ernie Smith kept the entertainment going while he played his guitar and sang. Each year there is a questionnaire for everyone to fill out for a chance to win a jean jacket. This reporter is thrilled to say that my name was drawn for this year's jacket, even though my husband claimed it, it was great to win.

There wasn't going to be any entertainment for the evening, but thanks to Ron Peterson (Mullet Man) who stepped up to volunteer playing his guitar and sing, the evening was a great hit. The crowd loved him and took it upon themselves to take up a collection.

Some of the regulars to the Medicine Lodge Rodeos know Susan Longmore, who is always working hard behind the scenes. Some of you may not know it, but Susan underwent a liver transplant just three short months ago. She is doing well, but her road hasn't been an easy one. Through her determination and dedication, Susan is on track to a full recovery. She has remained a vital part of this year's event.

To help with some of the medical expenses Susan and her husband have endured the past few months, contributions were raised from a wooden swing auction sponsored by Winchester Springs.

President Kelsey Anderson and the rest of the committee would like to thank all the rodeo fans, sponsors, volunteers, and contestants for another fantastic event. This event couldn't take place without the many individuals that help make it happen.

Jasper welcomes back visitors with end of fire threat

by Dana McArthur

Jasper Mayor Richard Ireland stated, "We are able and eager to safely welcome visitors back to the community."

Line transmission power has been restored for Jasper and the Chetamon Mountain wildfire poses no risk to the town site or surrounding communities. The town was switched to generators due to transmission lines being taken out by the wildfire. Residents were asked to conserve electricity amid intermittent outages.

The wildfire, which ignited September 1, was estimated to be around 6,000 hectares on Sept 14. About 100 firefighters and five helicopters were working on the fire.

Despite dry conditions over the weekend, Parks Canada deputy incident commander of the Chetamon Mountain wildfire, Landon Shepherd stated they were able to keep the fire growth limited on both the critical north and south ends of the fire.

Reservations for Whistlers Campground through the Parks Canada system was to resume on September 20, with bookings available until October 10. Parks Canada will be keeping all other front country campgrounds closed for the season.

The back country reservation system will be reopening and all hiking trails not within the zone where the wildfire is still burning are open and have not been damaged.

During the Yellowhead County Council meeting on September 13, General Manager of Protective Services Albert Bahri said, "When the fire ignited we were able to watch that on our Aspen Heights camera. So we watched it develop from Friday straight through the weekend. That enabled us to do our planning to move equipment into place very quickly."

County worked with the Agriculture and Forestry department and Jasper Park on what the fire was doing, how it was moving and any points of concern, said Bahri. County deployed structure protection equipment including tanks in the Brule area for sprinkler protection.

"There is 15 kms of distance from the fire to Yellowhead County; the fire is very subdued. It did pose a hazard to surrounding communities. It was moving very quickly and was out of control. That threat is gone now," said Bahri.

Councillor Ken Groat,

Division 8, Hinton Area/Cadomin/Robb stated, "On behalf of the community I want to thank you and Protective Services for bringing those tanks. People are thankful for what the County did."

Mayor Wade Williams also thanked Bahri for Protective Services' proactive approach and a job well done.

Canadian canola production estimates vary

“The latest estimate from Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada released August 22 is for an 18.4 million tonne crop, based on average yields,” says Neil Blue, provincial crops market analyst with Alberta Agriculture, Forestry and Rural Economic Development. “Other government and private market analysts are projecting a crop of between 19 and 19.9 million tonnes.”

Weather conditions have been much better than last year, but certainly not perfect. The spring was cool and dry in much of the Western Prairies, and cool and wet in the Eastern Prairies. Parts of Alberta were overly dry for most of the season, and that led to some production losses.

In most of Manitoba, canola crops are late, were hampered by overly wet soils, and are subject to frost damage. However, the hot August weather is pushing maturity along and harvest will soon become general.

What about market prospects? Canola carryover into this crop year was low. At the end of July, the Canadian Grain Commission reported that 566,000 tonnes of canola were in commercial storage. There was also some canola left on farms, either committed for delivery or just being stored.

Therefore, the canola carryover, although implying that the 2021 production was higher than earlier estimates, was likely under one million tonnes. That equates to less than one month’s usage and compares to the record carryover 3 years ago of over 4.4 million tonnes.

“Canola has well developed markets, both for seed exports and products of our domestic crushing industry,” points out Blue. “With the renewed supply, it is likely that domestic canola crushing will approach or exceed the record 10.4 million tonnes of the 2020-21 crop year.”

Although a repeat large Australian crop could provide more competition to Canadian exports, Canada’s 2022-23 canola exports could rebound to 9 million tonnes, which is only the 5-year average level. Even with a 20 million tonne crop, those canola usage numbers would result in another year of tight ending stocks.

“There are many factors that affect canola prices. Although canola prices have dropped from spring highs, they are still historically high. Input costs have risen, but with average yields, the potential margins are still very profitable,” says Blue. - AgriNews
